Performance Commentary

SKAGEN Vekst had a troublesome end to November with investors taking risk off the table in a couple of sectors that have performed well this year. Uncertainty surrounding the newly proposed US tax legislation also led to fairly large movements in the renewable space. Our largest detractor this month, Vestas, was particularly affected by this. Several of our materials holdings also developed weakly on the back of sliding commodity prices. On the positive side, we continue to see strong performance from our Russian exposure, with Sberbank, a 2.75% holding in the fund, delivering very encouraging figures on the back of an improving macro environment. This is also reflected in sales figures from Carlsberg. Other strong contributors included Lufthansa, Novo Nordisk and Broadcom.

During the month, we continued to add to holdings where we have high conviction for higher returns, primarily Applied Materials, Anglo American, Swatch and Northern Drilling. In addition, we added a new holding, the US pharma supplier Thermo Fisher Scientific. We trimmed and sold out of several minor holdings where we see better opportunities elsewhere or they reached our price targets. Amongst these were Danieli, Philips Lighting and IM Skaugen.
